Exercise = Good

You've heard that regular exercise is one of the best things you can do to increase overall health and longevity. Now you can add another reason to get your body moving. Physical activity helps keep your digestive tract running smoothly and also relieves stress, a major cause of heartburn.

Exercise can have tremendously positive effects on the skin. Regular exercise can increase blood flow to the skin, which gives us a naturally rosy complexion to help us exude a healthy and positive glow. When people don't get regular exercise, their skin can look sallow and dull.
